Pan Am International Flight Academy purchased by All Nippon Airways

Published on Tuesday, 27 August 2013

Pan Am International Flight Academy and Pan Am Holdings, Inc. (collectively "Pan Am") announced it has been purchased by ANA Holdings, the parent company of All Nippon Airways Co. Ltd, one of the leading airlines in the world. Former owner, American Capital, Ltd sold Pan Am, held in its portfolio since 2006. The combination of Pan Am and All Nippon Airways makes for a strong partnership and positions the new entity to meet the increasing demand for trained pilots worldwide. Pan Am is one of the world's largest independent providers of flight simulation and aviation training services and has the second largest number of flight simulators used for training. Airlines and individuals from across the globe, including North and South America, Europe and Asia rely on Pan Am for flight training services.

All Nippon Airways plans to expand Pan Am into Asia by providing training to other Asian airlines, partner firms and subsidiaries. With air travel expected to double within the next 30 years, and much of the growth occurring in Asia, the company is poised to capture opportunities and create an additional source of steady revenue for the Airline.

Pan Am CEO, Mr. Vito Cutrone states, "This is a very exciting time for Pan Am. We feel certain that working with our new owners at ANA will bring new and profitable opportunities for Pan Am's continued growth, and particularly new opportunities for the employees of Pan Am."

Pan Am International Flight Academy, headquartered in Miami, FL, has its origins in Pan American World Airways as its original training division, and operates under one of the most recognized brands in the world. The company provides flight simulation and training on all the leading aircraft types, operating nine training facilities in the U.S. and abroad, with more than 200 aviation training programs available.

Pan Am International Flight Academy Launches New Pilot Training Website

Posted on Wednesday 21st August 2013 | Airline

Pan Am International Flight Academy has launched its new Pilot Training website: PanAmAcademy.com/Pilot-Training.

The company recently re-entered Ab Initio ("from the beginning...") training with the acquisition of the former Airline Career Academy (ACA) earlier this year after a five-year hiatus.

The new Pilot Training website details the training courses and programs, training locations and aircraft, accommodations, student resources, and an application process for enrollment.
