JANUARY EDITION

BUSY YEAR AHEAD FOR THE ASSOCIATION

Aviation/Aerospace Australia is set for a watershed year, with an unprecedented range of events, activities and issues planned for 2013.

While corporate memberships continue to grow nationally, the Association will also be unveiling two new divisions, focusing on the development of young industry professionals and the unique issues and opportunities for women in a sector traditionally dominated by men.

This year will also see a new focus by the Association on the critical challenges facing the manufacturing sector, and how Australian aviation and aerospace companies can develop more efficient, productive and competitive practices to help position themselves in the new global economy, and to capitalise on opportunities in Asia and beyond.

Continuing the focus on international relations, the Association will also continue to expand its international reach, with a number of strategic partnerships under development with international and regional bodies spanning the broad spectrum of aviation and aerospace manufacturing, safety, trade, sustainability, skills and professional development.

AVIATION/AEROSPACE SUMMIT COUNTDOWN BEGINS

Don't miss your opportunity in February to network with industry leaders from Indonesia, China, India, Taiwan, Malaysia, Singapore, Switzerland, United States, Papua New Guinea, New Zealand and Australia, as they discuss critical issues and opportunities, share experience and create new collaborations and partnerships.

With only 15 days before registrations close for one of the most significant aviation industry events in Australia, the 2013 Asia Pacific Aviation and Aerospace Leaders Summit, to be held in Melbourne 25-27 February.

Day 1 of the Summit will be opened by Federal and State Ministers, and will feature high-calibre delegates from airports, commercial and general airlines, governments, regulators, manufacturers and others from Asia and beyond.

Days 2 and 3 take place at the Australian International Air Show, and are an ideal opportunity to build relationships with potential partners in a collaborative industry environment built around networking functions, industry seminars, one-on-one meetings and events hosted by Air Show exhibitors.

Numbers are strictly limited and places are filling extremely fast, so you must register now to be part of this unique event.

Bookings Close Friday 15 February

YOUNG AVIATION/AEROSPACE AUSTRALIA
Inspiring passion in the next generation

As a newly formed division of A/AA, YA/AA aims to inspire people by opening channels of communication among its members and the industry. From exchanging ideas, discussing concerns and engaging in professional experiences, YA/AA will allow access to variety of privileges to its members.

Since the formation we continued to grow and with the executive team appointed we are now looking forward to our first launch event scheduled for 28th Feb 2013. We encourage all A/AA members to participate positively in advancing the works of the division. To attend please email yaaa@aviationaerospace.org.au

Our 2013 initiatives will include a focus on the harmonization of networking events for our members and creating a mechanism for exchanging ideas on various topics. Finally, we will be holding site tours and a national forum focused on skills in engineering. More details to follow. As we continue on our successful YA/AA development journey, my very best to each of you in 2013!
