

Each of us will be expected to put the velvet glove on – that is the price of participation. The iron fist can be a variety of different parties – government agencies are the obvious, but there are third party stakeholders and customers who all from time to time may flex their muscles. The objective of course is to ensure the gloves are always on and the fist not flexed. To read more click here